Further details

Further rain is likely to affect Sussex at times on Sunday afternoon. This may ease for a time, but there is then a chance of a brief spell of heavier rain during Sunday evening. 10 to 20 mm rain is likely to fall, with a chance of one or two places seeing up to 30 mm; this more likely during the evening. Given saturated ground and high river levels, this brings the risk of some flooding.

The rain is expected to clear eastwards by midnight.
